Introduction of Seoul

▪ Why Seoul?

Seoul is a city of infinite discoveries. The ancient capital of an ancient land, Seoul is a city where the traditional and the cutting-edge exist side-by-side in perfect harmony. It's a dynamic city that never sleeps, and the list of things to do is endless, from sampling the outstanding cuisine served in the city's excellent restaurants to climbing the rock faces that overlook the city. Come to Seoul, and learn why so many travelers fall in love with this fast-paced but relaxing city.

▪ Infinite Discoveries

The longer you stay in Seoul, the more you realize that you could spend decades in the city and discover only a portion of what the city has to offer.

The capital of Korea for some 600 years, Seoul is full of reminders of its long and glorious past, from the imposing royal palaces in the downtown area to the world-class collection of the newly constructed National Museum of Korea in Yongsan. Not content to live in the past, however, the city is cutting a blazing path to the future as a cultural, business and transportation hub of Northeast Asia.

The activities open to you in Seoul are limited only by your imagination and inclination. Sightseeing of Seoul

Insa-dong Shopping street

A trip to Insadong offers an immediate immersion into Korean culture. This lively, charming area of downtown Seoul is filled with restaurants, traditional teahouses, and outdoor performances frequently take place there. In Insadong, every corner you turn is a discovery. It is also one of the best places in Korea to pick up souvenirs. Insadong's streets are lined with shops selling traditional Korean craftwork, which are often handmade by artisans. Here you can find all manner of items that are unique to Korea, such as wooden masks that used to be used in performances, fashions inspired by Korea's traditional costume, and lamps made from traditional paper. During your trip to Korea, make sure you take advantage of the favorable exchange rate, and purchase some high-quality original souvenirs that'll make for perfect gifts.

Gyeongbokgung Palace

Built in 1395, Gyeongbokgung Palace is also commonly referred to as the “Northern Palace” because it is located more toward the north, compared to the neighboring palaces of Changdeokgung (Eastern Palace) and Gyeongheegung (Western Palace). Gyeongbokgung Palace is arguably the most beautiful and remains the grandest of all the five palaces.

Remarkably, the most representative edifices of the Joseon Dynasty, Gyeonghoe-ru Pavilion and Hyangwonjeong Pond are still relatively in tact. Woldae and the sculptures of Geunjeongjeon (The Royal Audience Chamber) represent the past sculpture art which was the trend back then.

Sightseeing of Seoul

Namsan Park

Mt. Namsan is a symbolic mountain located at the center of Seoul. Although not as high as other surrounding mountains, Mt. Namsan is a very popular nonetheless as a resting site. At the top, there are various facilities such as Palgakjeong (octagonal hall), Seoul Tower, Maritime Aquarium, fountains, and Namsan Library. You may take a cable car to the top or walk up the stairway path. Other than this path, there are many other walkways to Namdaemun, Hoehyun-dong, Taegyero 3(sam)-ga, Jangchung Park, Itaewon, Huam-dong and much more. The driving courses here are also popular for couples.

Cheong Gye Cheon Stream

As part of Seoul's environmentally-friendly focus, the Cheong Gye Cheon Stream construction project will be officially opened on October 1st. This project took just 26 months and included the beautiful restoration of many cultural properties such as Gwangtonggyo Bridge built in 1410 by the order of King Taejong of the Joseon Dynasty. As part of the opening ceremonies, there will be traditional Korean performances, also a celebratory concert presented by the Seoul Philharmonic Orchestra and the Seoul Youth Philharmonic Orchestra at the Sejong Centre for the Performing Arts. During the festival, one can enjoy a number of different concerts on a couple of bridges over the stream and a number of stages throughout the heart of Seoul, Korea's 600 year old capital city.
